because the first game didn't resemble mm3 enough. I am making this game knowing that this game was made by 1 person.

The game is not very big, reflected in the price tag. I am also just coming off playing 'The Room' series, and they are a much better series, but one should expect as such. This is...fine. Its puzzles aren't straightforward, and seem more trial and error than anything, but I may not have been engaging the full brain power, because I was not as invested as in previous puzzle games. Fun, but frustrating, as the puzzles are puzzles because of lack of information, rather than puzzles. Good for 1 person. Stiff and unpolished. Keep mobile games off steam please.. Unplayable (servers are turned off).. Move out of the way Fallout 4 and MGSV, GOTY is already here.. Awesome good work SUSAN.. This game will be one of those I keep coming back to again and again.

. Bruh this game be gucci, but my wife left me..... It's okay, I've played worse. but i do like puzzle games.. great colors and sounds.

Has a lovely aesthetic, and a whimsical piano score to calm your rage when you fail.

The best way to get the most out of this game is in short bursts. You will think you are trying to land on a car, but in reality you end up in a tree.

Me and my BFF are sooo waiting for the multiplayer version of this game to be released!!! I have a hilarious video on youtube of me playing this as well xD. The grind for the basic true ending takes longer than playing through the entirety of the main story. Overall the game has bland characters and an unfleshed out story.. Ode to Joy is awesome.. The good old formula, Improved! Better eye tearing visuals and effects, new boss ships (i do miss the worm and the octopus tho), new ways to play your music with open mic. same old gameplay that we love!

If i do have one complaint it is that i wish there was another way to earn the 20 score multiplier than turning the visuals to 300% because it does hurt a bit after like 7-9 songs, and i do want to play for longer than that without feeling like my eyes are gonna pop out of my head.. I bought this for my 6 year old daughter. She really enjoys the fact that this game was made by someone her age. Keep up the good work, Penny!. 10/10 Made me wanna kill myself.

Would buy as a joke 10 more times.

Actually no. Please no.. my horse was sick

but its condition is stable
